2015: A Year of Big Projects Finished, and Other Things Started

Someday when the overall story of the Montour Trail is written, we’ll look back and see 2015 as one of the really pivotal years in the history of its development. Not that there haven’t been big completions before: the Airport area in 1995; Venice-to-McDonald in 2003; the three bridges in western Peters in 2008. But 2015 saw the opening of two major trail bridges that, together, represented the completion of the Montour through Washington County, and upped the length of continuous open trail to thirty six miles. Moreover, the Library Viaduct was completed and opened for trail use. Altogether, these completions are the biggest leap yet towards the goal of having a finished trail from Coraopolis to Clairton.

Volunteers Keep it Going

Let’s start by acknowledging another great year of work by Montour’s volunteers. Without all of you, nothing would get done; the trail would not even be there. Many, many of you spent a few minutes, an hour, a day - or much more - tending to some aspect of the trail that needed attention. Over the course of a year, this adds up to a large amount of time, on the part of scores of people. Again, hours are difficult to pin down, because so much trail work is done without making a fuss about it, but estimated Montour volunteer hours for 2015 are somewhere around 22,000. This is a big story, too: That this enormous volunteer effort is what keeps the trail and the organization in good shape.

Library Viaduct Finished

The opening of the Library Viaduct in May 2015 brought a successful conclusion to the largest single project in MTC history. It was the result of an extensive coordination of engineers, contractors, PennDOT and other agency personnel, with MTC oversight led by volunteer project manager Tom Prezel. Just west of the viaduct, a mile and a half of trail was completely re-built by a well-reinforced MTC volunteer trail construction crew. Lots of trail users have been enjoying this area ever since. The adjacent Pleasant Street trail section cleared a number of funding and permitting hurdles in 2015; its completion was pushed out to 2016.

Two Bridges Complete the Trail in Washington County

Valley Brook #2 Bridge in central Peters was completed in October, after years of preliminary work, permitting, and design led by project manager Mark Imgrund. (Not the least of these was the 2013 construction of the nearby Valley Brook #1 Bridge.) Valley Brook 2 made seamless the connection between the Peters and Cecil sections of the Montour, and opened the way for a lot of trail travel in both directions.

Over in western Cecil, PennDOT realigned the intersection of Route 50 and Route 980, and constructed a trail bridge to carry the Montour above the roads. This was another project that had undergone numerous twists and turns for many years. Its November ribbon cutting finished the trail’s main line through Washington County, and connected the very first (1992) section of the Montour to all the trail that lies towards Coraopolis.

Other Trail Projects Done . . .

The Westland Branch got done and opened in late 2015, although some signs and other details have yet to be put in place. But the 4.2 mile rail-with-trail branch trail is open, all the way to a new trailhead just off Route 519 in Westland. With its more pronounced gradient and the adjacent live railroad, the branch offers an experience that stands in contrast to the rest of the Montour.

The Dowling trail camping facility, located along Peters Creek in Jefferson Hills, was roughed in and opened. The property was donated by the Dowling family, and development funds granted by REI. Finishing out the Adirondack shelter (a Boy Scout project) and other final items got pushed into 2016. With established camping facilities at Boggs and Kurnick, this makes for three roughly equidistant locations along the Montour for travelers to camp. The on-road signage improvements done by Steel Valley between McKeesport and Clairton have brought more through travelers to Montour, so this additional camping facility is a well timed amenity.

Numerous smaller scale improvements got done as well. A stretch of trail was re-surfaced by the Montour crew in Cecil, and another started in North Fayette by their road crew, finishing in 2016, thanks! A safety guiderail also got installed near Five Points. At the National Tunnel in Cecil, an initial temporary experiment was successful in remediating the winter icing problem.

. . . And Started

At the Montour Junction area near Coraopolis, design was largely completed for the extension of the trail west of Mile 0. Construction started in early 2016, and is likely to continue for some time. This connection is as eagerly anticipated by the residents of Coraopolis as it is by us Montour folks.

And the Pleasant Street trail section got cleared go to construction in 2016. This will also be of great value to the residents of that section of Library. For us, it will be more main line trail, and the connection of the Library Viaduct through to Pleasant Street, very near to the Port Authority’s Library T station.

Planning for the Future

In late fall of 2015, Montour conducted a second strategic planning session, which produced six clearly defined objectives. The first one is to complete the Montour Trail main line. The other objectives aim to increase membership and volunteers; strengthen MTC committees; and better manage real estate and communications.
In response to the plan objectives, MTC committees have really stepped up. The Finance Committee is keeping MTC on a firm fiscal footing; the Operations Committee is striving diligently to streamline MTC’s inner workings and multiply its effectiveness. In response to a longstanding need, the Membership and Community Outreach Committee has formed, and is pursuing several initiatives.

Friends Groups and Event Committees Stay the Course

The Friends Groups remain the backbone of local operations. Their work on the trail, in the local communities, and with all of our townships and municipalities remained strong this year. It is all these thousands of interactions, each to a united purpose, that keep the trail and its organization alive and moving forward. Last year saw some newer and younger Friends getting more involved, a good trend to keep those groups strong.

The trail-wide events of the Burgh’s Race, the Half Marathon, and Tour the Montour were all well attended, and succeeded in raising significant funds for trail operation. As it happens, 2015 was a watershed year for these, too; each of these events is undergoing significant changes for 2016 and beyond. Careful planning will help ensure that these remain strong fundraisers and venues for collaborative interaction between Montour and the racing, distance running, and bicycling communities of the greater area.

Montour again hosted the 300 riders of the PA Greenways Sojourn, showing them the trail and volunteers at their best. In addition, the annual events that were hosted by the Friends Groups also did well last year.

Individual Members Are What Makes the Montour Trail

Once again, memberships and donations remain strong, despite the uncertainties of the national economy. This mirrors the picture of substantial donations by members to nonprofits nationwide in recent years. Simply put: Even with limited resources, people will channel what support they can to those things in which they most strongly believe. Thank you all for continuing to express your belief that the Montour Trail is a great regional asset worthy of your support.

Onward to 2016, and Beyond

This year has already started out as an active and productive successor to 2015. Thank you again for all of your help, and enjoy the trail!

Thank you 2015 sponsors and special donations!
